

SO COLD THE RIVER

AVAILABLE IN THEATERS MARCH 25
ON DEMAND AND DIGITAL MARCH 29

- Release Date: Available in Theaters March 25; On Demand and Digital March 29
- Directed By: Paul Shoulberg
- Written By: Paul Shoulberg (screenplay)
- Produced By: Claire Tuft, Zachery Spicer, John Robert Armstrong
- Starring: Bethany Joy Lenz, Katie Sarife, Andrew J. West, Michael J. Rogers, Kevin Cahoon, Kingston Vernes, with Alysia Reiner and Deanna Dunagan
- Run Time: 95 minutes
- Genre: Thriller, Supernatural, Mystery
- Rating: R for some violence, bloody images, and language.
- Synopsis: A chilling, suspenseful adaptation of “The New York Times” bestseller, SO COLD THE RIVER. Acclaimed documentary filmmaker Erica Shaw (Bethany Joy Lenz, “Dexter”) is hired by Alyssa Bradford-Cohen (Alysia Reiner, “Orange is the New Black”) to profile her dying father-in-law, the enigmatic millionaire Campbell Bradford. Erica is presented with a substantial sum of money and a relic, an antique bottle filled with water from a local spring, one of the few clues connecting Bradford to the town he once dominated. While researching Bradford as a guest of a massive, opulent resort with a dark past, Erica meets unofficial town historian Anne McKinney (Tony Award-winner Deanna Dunagan), fanatical intern Kellyn (Katie Sarife, Annabelle Comes Home) and hotel maintenance worker Josiah (Andrew J. West, “The Walking Dead”), a descendant of Bradford’s who reveals the familial curse of mysterious deaths and suicides. Seemingly possessed by the relic, Erica begins drinking from the antique bottle, experiencing terrifying visions and, ultimately, unleashing unspeakable evil. Can Erica make her way through the darkness or is Campbell’s evil undercurrent too strong?

For additional information on the film, please contact:

Los Angeles:

Danny Duran – danny@ddpr.net

Steven Argula – steven@ddpr.net